Birmingham City University
Faculty of Performance, Media and English
Course Director, Postgraduate Broadcast Journalism
United Kingdom

With around 25,000 students from 80 different countries, Birmingham City University is one of the largest universities in the UK and our popularity has grown significantly in recent years. Between 2008 and 2010, we had the highest rise in UCAS applications of any university in the Midlands. Situated in Birmingham, the UK's second city, we are proud of our strong links and close collaboration with the region, which dates back to 1843. The University puts more than £270 million into the regional economy and supports thousands of jobs in the city and surrounding area. Our six academic faculties offer over 350 courses, from foundation level, through undergraduate degree programmes, to taught Master's courses and research doctorates. About a third of our students study part-time, combining employment with our professionally relevant courses, improving their career prospects.

Diane Kemp is a Course Director of postgraduate broadcast journalism courses at the Birmingham School of Media. She teaches radio and television skills and newsroom/production practice on the MA in International Broadcast Journalism and the professionally accredited Postgraduate Diploma in Broadcast Journalism courses. Prior to that Diane worked for the BBC in local radio and regional television. She also freelanced for BBC network radio, although she initially started out in commercial radio. Diane has been a member of the Broadcast Journalism Training Council representing other Universities on the Board for some years. She's also an external examiner at two other 'BJTC' accredited institutions. Through her work with the BJTC she has contributed to and run workshops for the Council of Europe in their anti-discrimination campaign. As part of this she's co-written and compiled a journalism training pack promoting diversity for the Campaign. She's also conducted journalism diversity training for the Fundamental Rights Agency of the EU and taught journalism ethics for Transparency International in Lithuania. Diane also collaborates with colleagues from the University's Centre for Criminal Justice, writing articles investigating media coverage of serious crime.
