Background and framework of the project

The Anna Lindh Foundation and the Partnership between the European Commission and the Council of Europe in the field of youth have engaged since three years in cooperation activities in the field of youth and intercultural dialogue. This cooperation is rooted in the common commitment to provide opportunities for young people to be part of intercultural dialogue, in the shared need to develop synergies and complementarities between each other's activities in Euro-Mediterranean context and in the commitments of the Faro platform for intercultural dialogue.

The Euro-Mediterranean co-operation between the European Union and the Mediterranean countries formalised through the Barcelona declaration stresses that "youth exchanges should be the means to prepare future generations for a closer cooperation between the Euro-Mediterranean partners". The Euro-Med Youth programme was proposed as a "permanent dialogue between young people from the 27 Euro-Mediterranean partners, to foster mutual understanding among young people (...) and to contribute to the process of democratisation of the civil society." Obviously, this can not be pursued without a strong emphasis on human rights and intercultural learning. It can also not be pursued without an involvement of young people themselves.

The Anna Lindh Euro-Mediterranean Foundation for the Dialogue between Cultures (www.euromedalex.org) is the first common institution jointly established and financed by all 37 members of the Euro-Mediterranean Partnership. This far reaching partnership between the European Union and their partners in the Southern Mediterranean region was launched at the Barcelona Conference in 1995. The declaration adopted at Barcelona strongly promotes regional cooperation in the economic, social and cultural fields. Created in 2004, the Anna Lindh Euro-Mediterranean Foundation for the Dialogue between Cultures aims to bring people and organizations from both shores of the Mediterranean closer to each other. The main target group of the Anna Lindh Foundation is youth and its main objectives are to promote a dynamic concept of dialogue between cultures through co-operation between civil society partners in education, culture, science and communication.

In 2009-2010, the two institutions would like to cooperate in the organisation of a common seminar on "Euromed Youth Policies in Intercultural Dialogue", which will enable both the Youth partnership and Anna Lindh Foundation to take stock of what is already done in this field and will at the same time serve as a preparation meeting for the Anna Lindh Forum 2010. This Seminar will give an insight about the Youth Policies in the Region and the status of cooperation and coordination between the different actors of the Euro-Mediterranean space. It will also help explaining how youth participation can be strengthened in different fields of actions of the Foundation and the Partnership (Education, Media, Cultural Production, Migration etc). The presence of 25 youth leaders and youth workers from the ALF Networks and the Partnership Networks along with policy makers and researchers will contribute to the formulation of concrete recommendations for action and guidelines for the ALF Forum 2010.

From the 4th to the 7th March 2010, the Anna Lindh Foundation will be gathering between 500 and 600 ALF members and partners, NGOs, other Euromed networks, institutions, experts, and personalities from across the region in the Anna Lindh Forum 2010 in order to give new momentum to the cooperation among civil society organizations committed to intercultural dialogue in the Euro-Med region and to increase its impact on the establishment of the Union for the Mediterranean while enriching the activities of the National Networks and the work of the Foundation.

In 2005 the Youth Partnership, together with several national and regional partners, initiated a process of youth policy co-operation in the broader Euro-Mediterranean region aimed at fostering greater cooperation between stakeholders of youth policy. Since then, several activities were organised to reflect on youth policy in the Euro-Med region:

- 2 round tables on youth policy cooperation in the broader Euro-Mediterranean region (Cairo 2006 and Budapest 2009)
- A seminar on the role of youth research in youth policy development (Cairo, 2006);
- A seminar on youth participation and the role of youth organisations in youth policy development and implementation (Budapest, 2007);

This seminar will contribute to further develop the work on youth policy, with a new focus lying on intercultural dialogue, and thus to combine the institution's experiences and expertise in these topics to contribute to successfully preparing the Anna Lindh Forum 2010.
