On 28 March 2019, Huso Cesir, the head of the municipal council of Novi Grad, a municipality of the capital Sarajevo, attacked Adi Kebo, the cameraman of the investigative outlet 'Zurnal', who was trying to record the official's private company while working on an alleged corruption story. Huso Cesir along with his son, Muamer Cesir, took away a camera of Abi Kebo and threatened to break it. After Kebo's contact with police, the camera was returned to the journalist. "Zurnal" filed a police report following the incident. The Association of Journalists of Bosnia and Herzegovina condemned the attack, highlighting that "journalists in Bosnia and Herzegovina are more and more often victims of various forms of violence."
