Stop sexual violence against children! Council of Europe Campaign 2010

In response to its mandate under the children's strategy for 2009-2011, the Council of Europe shall, in October 2010, launch a Europe-wide Campaign to stop sexual violence against children.

The campaign will aim to promote the ratification and implementation of the Council of Europe's primary legal instrument in this area: the Council of Europe Convention on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse (Lanzarote Convention), as well as the Convention on Cybercrime and the Convention on Action against Trafficking in Human Beings.

Furthermore, in keeping with current data which show that children are most likely to be abused by those closest to them, special attention will be devoted to the prevention of child sexual abuse taking place within the family or community settings.

The consultation with experts on the prevention of sexual abuse of children will allow participants to discuss future campaign actions which will:

- promote and be shaped by child participation;
- raise awareness among the general public, including parents, on sexual violence;
- look closely at the training of professionals who are in regular contact with children;
- promote education on sexual violence; and
- look at examples of intervention for potential offenders (especially minors).
