2. Summary

A radio documentary on the financial crisis from a gender perspective, focusing on young women and their position within the labour market. How are young women facing the crisis? Are women's rights compromised because of budget cuts? What is the hidden price of austerity, and its impact on gender equality and women's rights? The documentary, produced in Spanish and English, utilises interviews with financial experts, sociologists, women's associations, as well as the exchange of views between young and older women. We showcase how the crisis affects young women in Cyprus and Spain, and highlight common issues between the two countries.

3. Dissemination of the Output

The radio documentary will be disseminated through MYCYradio in Cyprus, as well as through the Cyprus Broadcasting Corporation (CyBC) Radio 2. In Spain, it will be aired Radio Enlace and will be shared with AMARC as well as several community radios in England and Ireland. It is going to be shared as a podcast through the Internet and disseminated by social media platforms. The public targeted is mainly men and women in countries that are affected by the financial crisis, but also for those who need to understand how the European crisis is affecting women's lives.
